In fact i just have two folder which have Tomb Raider 2013, one is named 'tomb raider bigfile.001.tiger'. The other one is 'bigfile.000.tiger'. But the names are not the only match too the file i download from the website i already download it but the file name is 'tomb raider bigfile.002.tiger' instead of 'bigfile.001.tiger'. And the file is the same. I'm pretty sure the file i download from the website is the legit one. The file name is not the same as the bigfile.001.tiger of Tomb Raider 2013, it's even not the same as the bigfile.000.tiger of Tomb Raider 2013. and the file i download is the exact match of the file of Tomb Raider 2013. I'm so confused, please advise me, thanks A: To confirm that your exact filename is indeed legit, do a few of the following: Check file hashes Use the md5sum command: md5sum bigfile.000.tiger Get the list of contents of the.tiger file Use the file command: file bigfile.000.tiger Check the rest of the possible filenames that you mentioned Check the list of filenames that your computer supports: find / | grep tig* Check that your download filename is mentioned in the list: ls /proc/filesystems Compare the contents of your valid file with the original file Use the dd command on the file so you can see the contents: 3da54e8ca3
